SATURDAY, JUNE 17.

[Communicated.] In your issue of the 29th alt. you published proposals for the introduction of paper currency as | joint undertaking of this nature may be entered egal tender and pointed out some of the advan- upon at an early day. tages which would accrue to planters and others ; when a law was enacted to bring this system into force; but omitted to mention one particular advantage which would result and that is the recovery of all the money that planters have been overcharged by their agents in their quarterly accounts current for compound interest, which charge is unlawful; for the law laid down in Sec. 1484, Chapter 35, of the Civil Code, reads as fol-

" No action shall be maintainable in any Court of this Kingdom to recover compound interest upon any contract whatever.

been obliged to submit to this over-charge, as they | son of Simon, for the Secretary of War. were at the mercy of their agents, who could at any time close on the plantation were any objective session, confirmed the nominations of Pierrewere at the mercy of their agents, who could at tions raised against this over-charge for compound | pont, Taft and Cameron. intere t; but the introduction of a paper currency per annum, simple interest. The Hawaiians, who have been the victims of unscrupulous and avaricious usurers ever since the work of civilization was commenced on these islands, and whose property has been alienated from them year after year until the number pos- on the Christian quarter and killed about one sessing kuleanas or other property upon which a mortgage could be effected, have become very few indeed in comparison with what these were in former years; few however, as they are, they will be saved from the clutches of these social vampires. I would wish to point out the disadvantages they have been laboring under heretofore and the advantages which must accrue to them when this proposed system is adopted. Hitherto when they have mortgaged their property to the class of men referred to, they have been charged with interest from 14 to 34, and in some instances as much as 5 per cent. per month; the first year's interest being deducted in advance from the amount of the loan, so that in the event of their being unable to pay up the principal at the expiration of the first year the money lenders, if they chose, could foreclose the mortgage and become the owners of the property. I would draw the attention of the victims of these usurious money-grabbers to the fact that all interest at a rate higher than 24 per cent. per month, charged on mortgages, is unlawful; for the law laid down in Sec. 1483, Chapter 35, reads thus: No action shall be maintainable, in any Court of this Kingdom, to recover a higher rate of interest than 24 per cent. per month, upon any contract made in this Kingdom," &c., so that having the law to protect them, we would strongly advise all those Hawaiians who have mortgages bearing a higher rate of interest than 21 per cent per month, to have them annulled, and have fresh ones drawn out, stipulating for the extent of interest only as provided for according to law.

Under the proposed new system they can, when they wish to do so, obtain toans from their own government to the extent of one-third of the appraised value of either freehold or landed property at a nominal rate of interest of 5 per cent. per annum only. Will not this be far better for the Hawaiians in every way? As matters are now, if we take the lowest rate of interest, i. e., 14 per cent, per month on a loan of say $300, it will amount to $54 per annum, whereas the government rate will be only $15, thereby giving a difference in saving on interest of $39; and not only this, but should the loan lapse, the property mortgaged will revert to government, and I should like to know who has a better right to it? These kuleanas were originally, I believe, the gift of a former king or government. I would also propose, in modification of paragraph nine of the proposals, published in your issue under advertence, that the government, as a special case, but not as a rule, assist with loans those who now have property mortgaged so as to enable them to effect a transfer of their property to government, the government will then become the only creditor; by this means the interest on their mortgages will be reduced and they will have a fair chance of ultimately redeeming their property.

There is no doubt but that the introduction of a paper currency will meet with strong opposition by the few interested, but it is to be hoped that the government will take such immediate and decided steps by introducing a law for carrying into effect the introduction of paper currency as legal tender as will break down all opposition on the part of plantation agents and money lenders.

Spontaneous Generation.

Professor Tyndall is again deeply involved in controversy; this time not with the clergy or theologians, but with the supporters of the "spontaneous generation" theory. Dr. Bastian, the distinguished naturalist and experimenter, is his most prominent antagonist, and the war is carried on not only through the columns of scientific journals, but in the Times, and other popular newspapers. Several years ago Professor Tyndall conducted some experiments which led him to concluded that atmosphericair held the germs from which sprang all the various forms of life found in the mixtures and infusions of Dr. Bastian and others, and consequently the notion that they come into existence de novo is a fallacy. In Tyndall's experiments with air, he found it loaded under all ordinary conditions with minute particles and organisms, which alone conferred upon it the power of scattering light. An absolutely clean volume of air has no diffusive power upon rays of light; consequently, if the atmosphere was entirely free from impurities we should be involved in darkness. This condition of the atmosphere awakened his suspicions that the experiments alleged to prove spontaneous generation possible were not reliable, and he therefere instituted a series in his own laboratory, the results He states that he boiled a large number of

On the other hand, tubes containing similar infusions, exposed under like conditions, as to time and temperature, to ordinary air, fell into active putrefaction and developed an abundance of life. Results of this nature, if reliable, of course at once deprived Dr. Bastian and others of all ground to stand upon, and stamped them as empiries. Dr. Bastian states in his book, "Evolution and the Origin of Life," that "we now know that boiled infusions exposed to air filtered or calcined, or shut off altogether from contact with air, are more or less proved to swarm with bacteria and vibriones in a few days.' Tyndall boldly attacks the doctor, and asks contemptuously, "Who are the 'we' that possess this knowledge?" Dr. Bastian replies in Nature by naming an array of distinguished scientists who advocate the doctrine of spontaneous generation, which would appal any less confident experimenter than Tyndall, and so the contest

Bastian claims that Tyndall's experiments are unreliable, from the circumstance that he did not conduct them with due regard to the temper RESH FROM THE FACTORY OF LOUIS ature at which the infusions were to be main-McMurray & Co., received per Ceylon, in cases of two ozen each—600 Dozen—in one and two pound Cans.

AMERICAN mense importance to the success of the experivery striking manner in which Professor Tyndall has deviated from the requisite experimental conditions in regard to temperature, it is impossible to have full confidence that he prepared the in-fusions in the manner prescribed. As regards the hundred and thirty-nine instances in which Tyndall failed to obtain the results indicated by him as being obtainable, Bastian says that " if so grave a question were not concerned, all this would be truly laughable, and, as it seems to him, far more like burlesque than the sober pursuit of science.' Tyndall replies to this in the Times, and says that the "temperature hypothesis" of Dr. Bastian will not answer, as he prepared his infusians with scrupulous regard to his 'prescriptions, and the temperature was maintained for weeks at from 80° to 90° F., and nevertheless they remained perfectly sterile throughout. It is, however, apparent from the admissions made by Professor Tyndall that he did not fully comply with Bastian's conditions, and so the question remains an unsettled one.

has for years remained in a state of confusion and uncertainty. Why cannot the question be Dr. Bastian, who represent the most able of the opposing investigators, will drop their acrimonious disputes in the journals, and join in a series of exhaustive experiments, under such conditions as will be satisfactory to both, then we may, perhaps, have results which will set the question at rest. It is certainly very desirable that some
